FOREWORD

Stevens High School has through many years established an enviable pattern for life. From 1871, when twelve students graduated from this institution, to the present, a skilled faculty has guided the young people of this city and the surrounding communities in this pattern for life. In all fields of endeavor and in all phases of student life, the moral, the mental, the physical obligations of the citizens of tomorrow have been taught. The high standards of excellence required in the classroom, the acute precision of the musical groups, the perfection of the athletic teams, and the general demeanor of the student body at all times have set a standard to be followed by all graduates, past present, and future. In the halls of our building live the ideals of the Stevens student, ideals that instill in him the qualifications of a voter, a leader, and an American. In the pages of this yearbook are portrayed the factors that have produced those ideals and that have made the alumni of Stevens High School proud of their training in a good pattern of life.

Stevens High School was founded in 1868; it opened with ninety-eight pupils and three teachers.

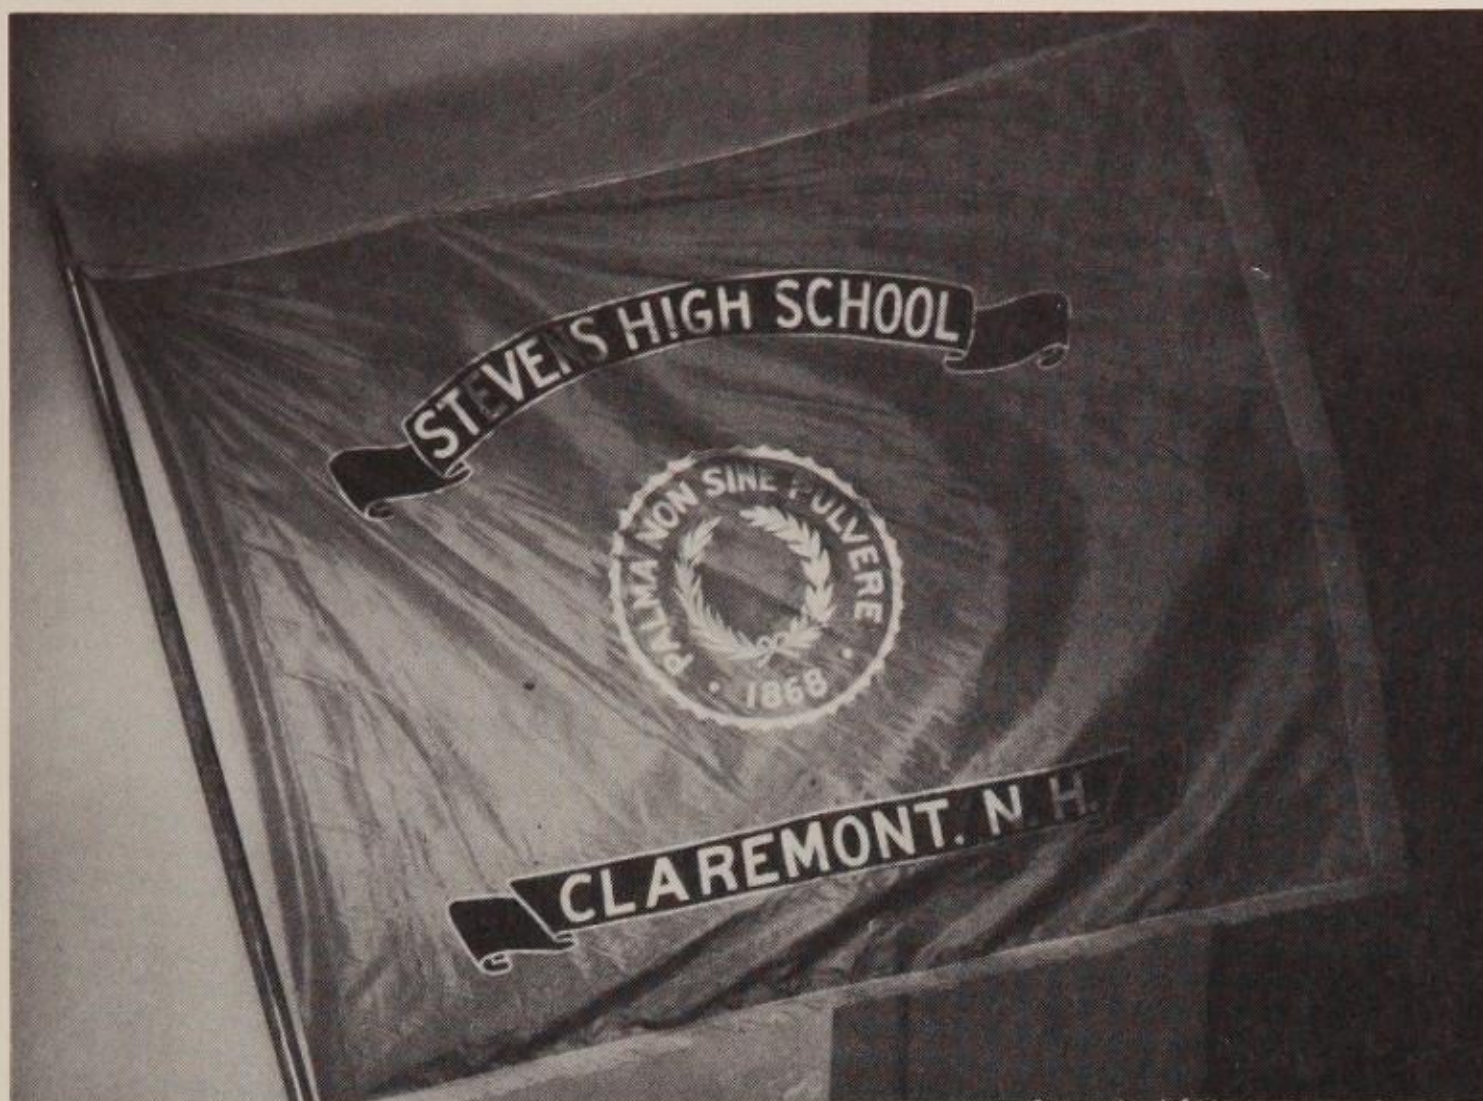

A PATTERN FOR LIFE

The carefree days of play and few responsibilities are now over for the Class of 1955. Although we may not have realized it, the past four years of high school have been richest in our lives. Under the guidance of our teachers, our work has been shaped into a definite design—a pattern for life. We have been taught the proper way to do things, the difference between right and wrong; we have had certain duties and responsibilities, but we have also had privileges. Our entire education has been a preparation for the problems of manhood and womanhood we face upon graduation. The uncertainty of the future creates a need for a discipline and a background that will enable us to lead rich and full lives. No matter what the field that we wish to enter may be, we shall have been well-prepared. The pattern of our life has been divided into three parts, moral, mental, and physical.

Our moral education in high school as well as in the home has prepared us for our future obligations. When we are old enough to vote, the proper knowledge of the correct procedure and our ability to vote for persons of character may greatly benefit our town, our state, or our country. We shall be able to apply our initiative to the best advantage by raising the standards of our home, school, or community. We have gained experience by electing our class officers to preside throughout the school year. The student council and assembly committee were chosen to promote the welfare of the student body and faculty. As an example of integrity and high standards, the honor society was initiated. Under the careful guidance of our teachers, the organizations have functioned smoothly and benefited the entire school. When the time came to consider our future vocations, the devoted staff again offered a guiding hand and gave us valuable information. The success of our future depends upon our past experience. We should be able to live a life of satisfaction and contentment because of the great moral influence our school has extended.

The duty of the teachers is to also develop the mental habits of today's youth who will be the citizens of tomorrow. The time we have spent in classrooms was devoted to develop our thinking, our knowledge of facts, and interpretation of various ideas. Through the musical organizations, a love of the beauty of art was nourished. The discipline of rehearsals, the practice for perfection, and the enlargement of our musical knowledge opened the way for talent and release for the mind in abstractions. Working together to create a picture or story in music resulted in a feeling of satisfaction that each had contributed a part of the whole. In dramatics we expressed our feelings and ideas and portrayed our fellow humans. The school library became a source of information and pleasure. From the various books we learned of people from other lands, of new ideas and inventions, and something of the complicated world that adults must contend with. The school paper was an opening for our ability to write and for the need to share our thoughts. The opportunity to work and to train for business was offered us. Here we learned how to attain security and how to be thrifty. The big climax of our social events was the Junior Prom where our conduct and graciousness were complimented. Thoughts of our future role in the world were crystallized by a career day and our participation in the city government. Through careful preparation and experience shall we be able to trace our pattern of life to perfection.

The physical aspect of school was the basis of our loyalty to our teammates and to the school. Training and self-discipline for sports coordinated our minds and bodies. We were taught to lose gracefully and to win graciously. We learned to respect our opponents and to play hard but fair. The rules of the game made for a good contest that required sagacity and teamwork to construct a solid moving unit. The various sports gave us a chance to condition our minds and bodies and yet relax them from a tedious routine. The physical education we received has a very definite part in our pattern for life.

Thus, throughout our days of high school, our life's pattern has been gradually cut. We will no longer have the protecting walls of Stevens or the companions of our youth to surround us. Each will go his own way with a memory of the past four years in his heart. The crowds at the football games, the class discussions, the dances and parties, and the commencement exercises will become a faded picture only to be brightened in occasional retrospect. The background of our school days will be with us in whatever we do wherever we go. Because of the teachings and guidance of a devoted staff and the spirit of a wonderful school, we shall face the future with confidence. Under the will of God, we are now ready to assemble the material cut from our pattern into the finished product of our life.

Mr. Edgar L. Lord,

Principal, sets a pattern of inspiration to his teachers and encouragement to his students.

TO THE CLASS OF 1955:

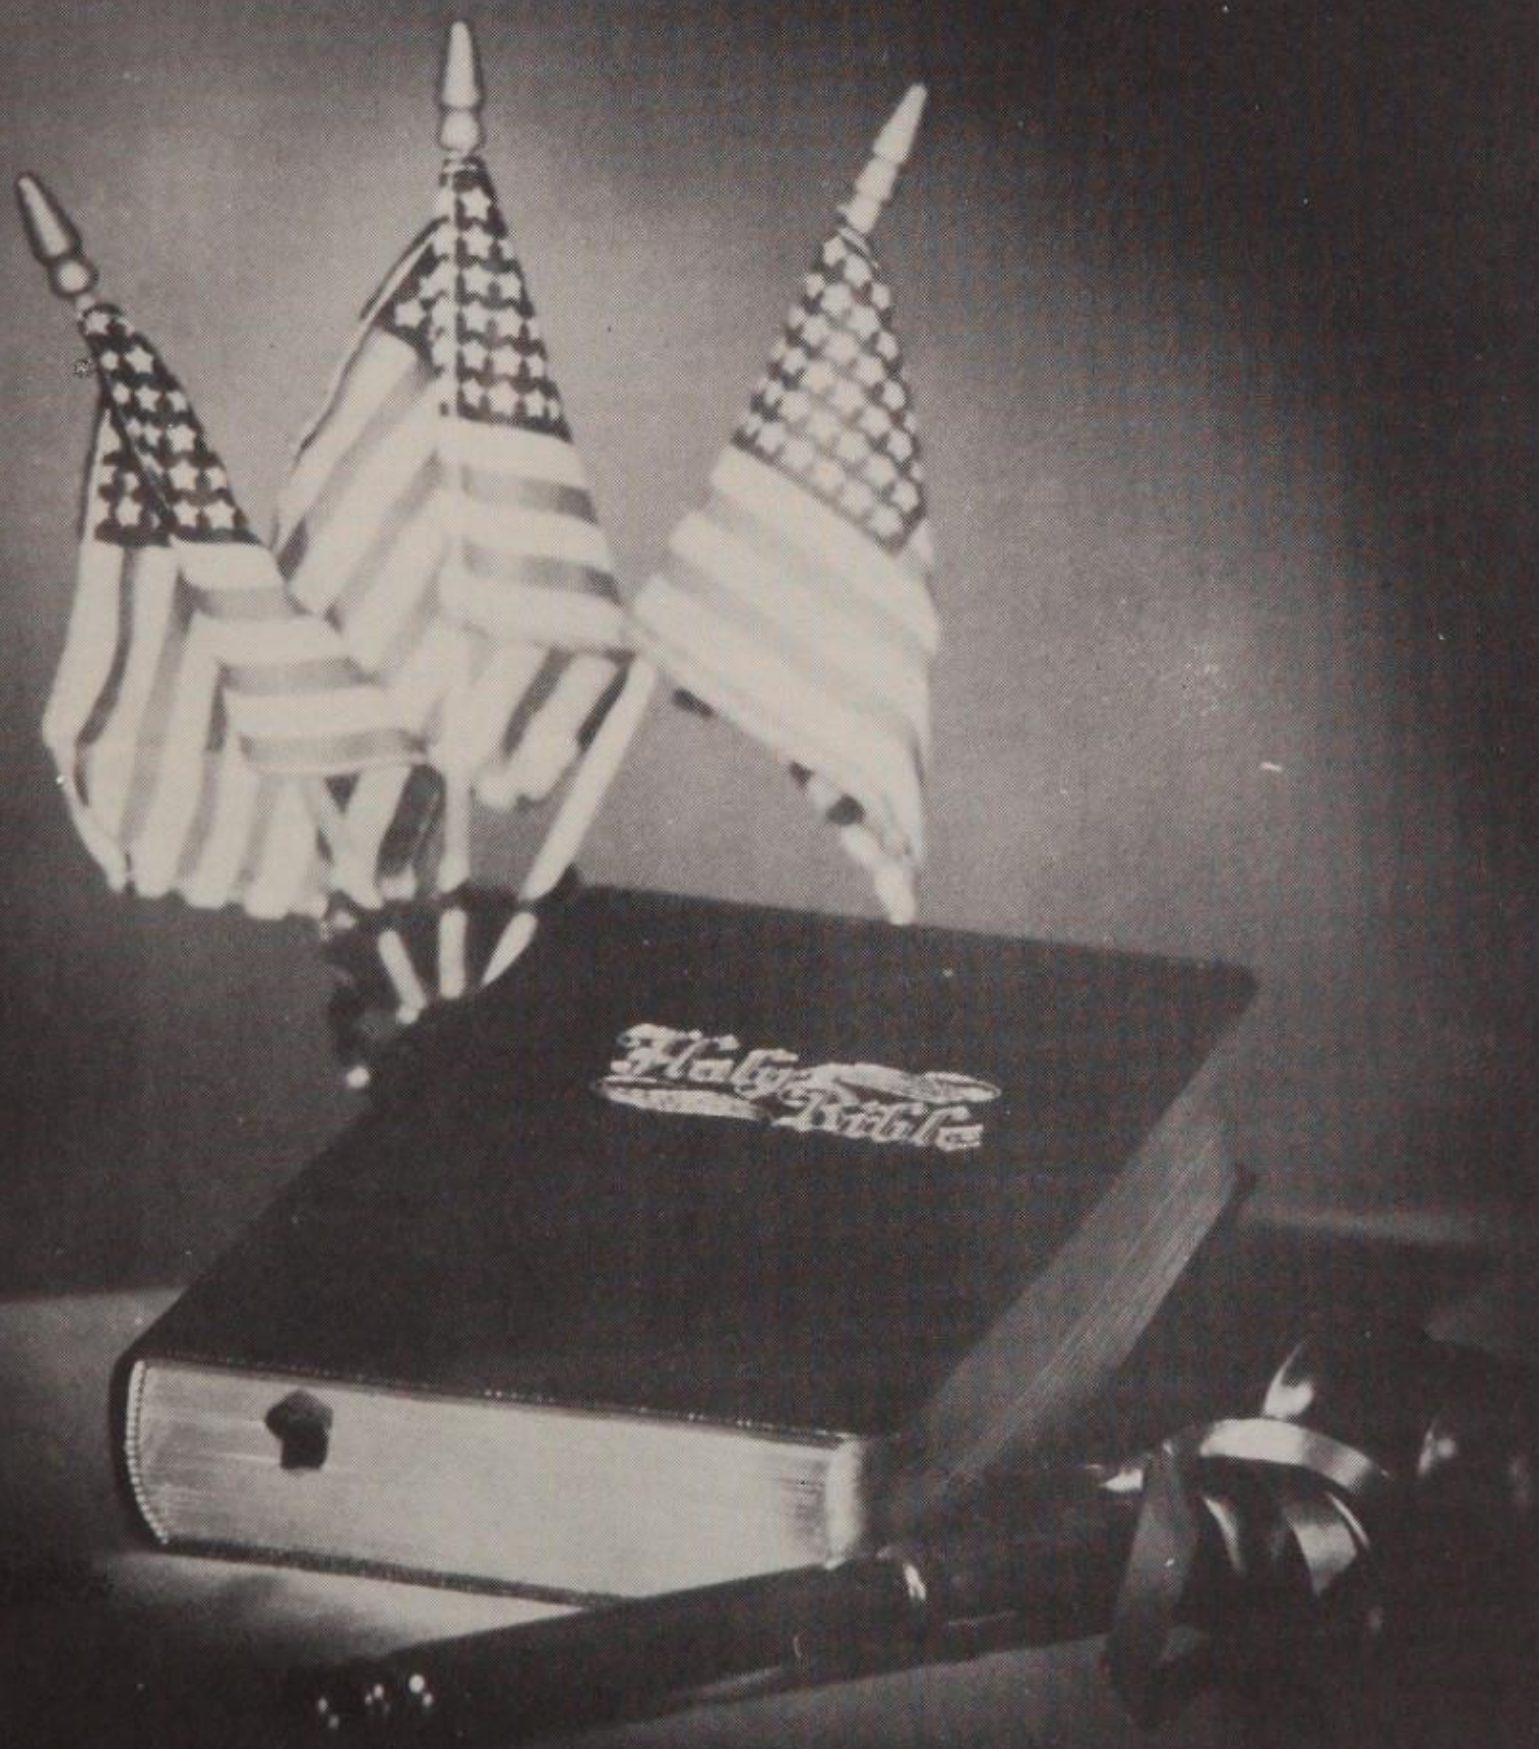

I wish to congratulate you on the production of this fine year-book. It is the result of cooperation between your chosen staff and the teachers under whose guidance they have worked, the finished product representing long hours and many decisions. Life is largely a series of decisions. The decisions of childhood are simple ones, but, as we mature, they become more serious. All are important in our everyday lives; therefore we need to acquire the ability to make them for our own good and the welfare of others. I earnestly hope that you of the Class of 1955 have been assisted in this vital task by your education in order that you may be capable of wise decisions throughout your lifetimes. May you readily recognize right from wrong and choose the former; may you select an interesting and useful vocation; and may you have the strength and health to enjoy life to its fullest. Thus your personal pattern for life will fit into this world and help to improve it. May God guide you to decide upon and to develop the very best pattern for each of you.

Sincerely yours,

Edgar L. Lord

MORAL

Elected To Duty By Their Peers

THE FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS: Secretary, A. Schneider; Treasurer, E. Hilliard; President, A. Clark; and Vice-President, S. Zemianek conduct a leisurely discussion of class affairs.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS OFFICERS: Vice-President, L. Hird; Treasurer, J. Ufford; President, M. Weiner; and Secretary, F. Beck enjoy a moment of respite in the fall sunshine.

Foreshadowing Future Moral Obligations—To Vote

THE JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS: President, J. Baldasara; Treasurer, W. Smith; Secretary, K. MacIver; and Vice-President, J. Clark plan class activities in the school office.

THE SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Treasurer, R. Denault; President, E. Hill; Vice-President, A. Dionne; and Secretary, A. Belden smile over a humorous class incident.

To Set An Example Of Moral And Civic Zeal

THE HONOR SOCIETY: M. LaFontaine, F. Hart, P. Gauthier, R. Story, E. Simoneau, and E. Hill examine the coveted trophy won by the track team.

"On my honor, as a member of the National Honor Society, I will do my best to represent the four ideals of the organization—Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service. I will be fair and square in my dealings with teachers and fellow students. I will remember that the primary purpose of school is getting an education. I will use what power of leadership I have toward making Stevens High a better school. I will serve my school without thought of personal glory."

To Govern And To Obey Just Laws

The purpose of this organization shall be:

1. To provide unity and cooperation of pupils and teachers in the extra-curricular activities of the school.
2. To develop the spirit, ideals, and practice of good citizenship in the school.
3. To promote the general welfare of Stevens High School and to uphold its good name and reputation.
4. To assist in the attempt to make high standards of scholarship popular in Stevens High School.
5. To help boost school spirit and morale for school activities.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL: W. Gray, Adviser; W. Smith, B. Brock, C. Talbert, J. Breton, M. Thompson, M. LaFountain, M. Zotto, E. Hilliard, A. Bailey, B. Kirn, C. Dole, L. Currier, H. Parker, C. Klementowicz, making plans for the annual meeting of the Student Council League of the Connecticut Valley.

Music Has An Important And Integral Role

THE STEVENS HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA is composed of nearly eighty members. It rehearses weekly on Tuesday evenings and Thursday mornings.

In The Pattern Of A Well-Rounded Education.

THIS MUSICAL GROUP performs at regular concerts throughout the years. It possesses excellent instruments including a fine set of chimes.

The Discipline Of Rhythm, The Feeling For Tone,

THE STEVENS HIGH SCHOOL MARCHING BAND is the best known of the musical organizations. At all football games, at many basketball games, in civic parades and as a concert band it entertains the students of Stevens and the citizens of Claremont.

The Interpretation Of Beauty Culminates In A Love For Art.

THE COLOR GUARD AND THE MAJORETTES are colorful adjuncts of the Stevens Band. Their clever maneuvers carried out to the accompaniment of the Band music have thrilled many loyal supporters during football intermissions.

The Rising Of Voices In Song,

THE STEVENS A CAPPELLA CHOIR consisting of eighty voices is renowned in Claremont for the excellence of its performances. An exceptionally well drilled choral group, its concerts are eagerly awaited and attendance is at capacity.

The Resulting Harmony To Uplift The Minds Of Youth

THE POPULAR ATTRACTION of the choir is evidenced by the great number of students who try out annually. A letter won from a musical organization is a prized possession eagerly sought.

That He Will Inevitably Encounter - - -

N. Allen proudly shows his graduation diploma to his mother.

The autographing of yearbooks has become a tradition among the Stevens graduates. H. Jones cheerfully signs B. Belisle's "Red and Black."

On Class Day F. Hart is presented with the Editorship of the yearbook by R. Lovejoy.

To the strains of the Stevens Band the Seniors enter the auditorium for Class Day exercises.

That He Will Resolve Into A Good Life,

The Senior Banquet annually gathers the graduating class together for a hearty meal and a good time.

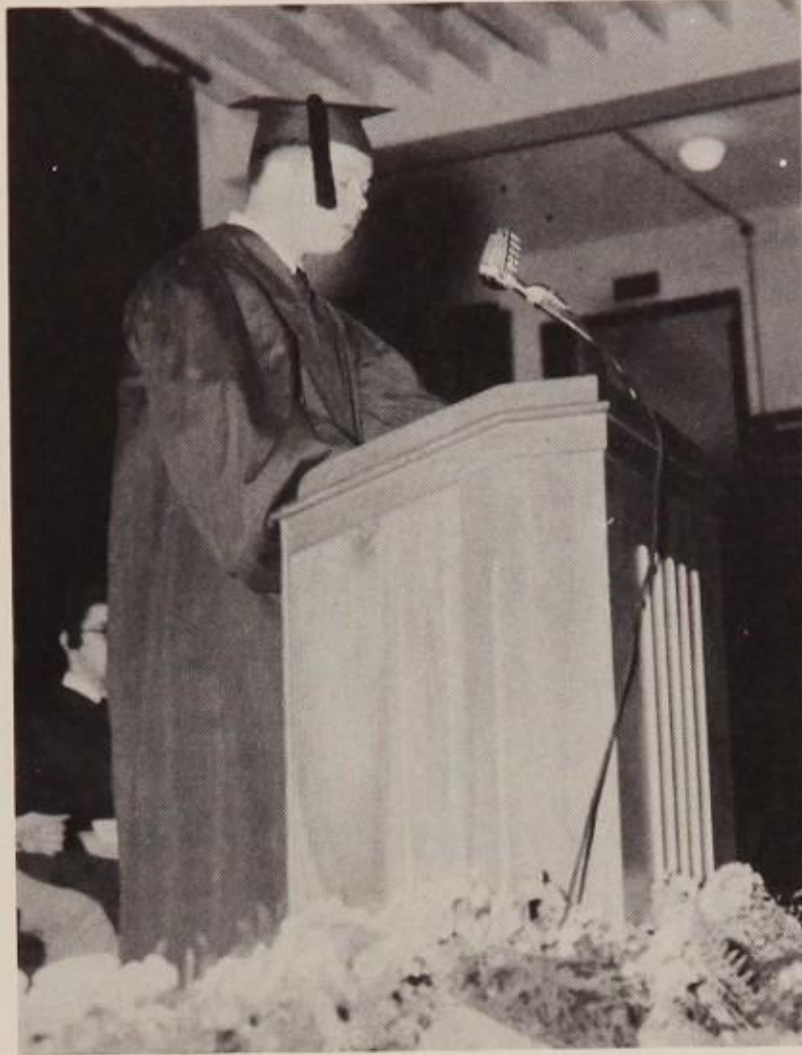

Over a cup of coffee these well-fed Seniors discuss with varied opinions any topic no matter how large its significance.

These young men carry on a diplomatic type conversation concerning last week's ball game or some related topic.

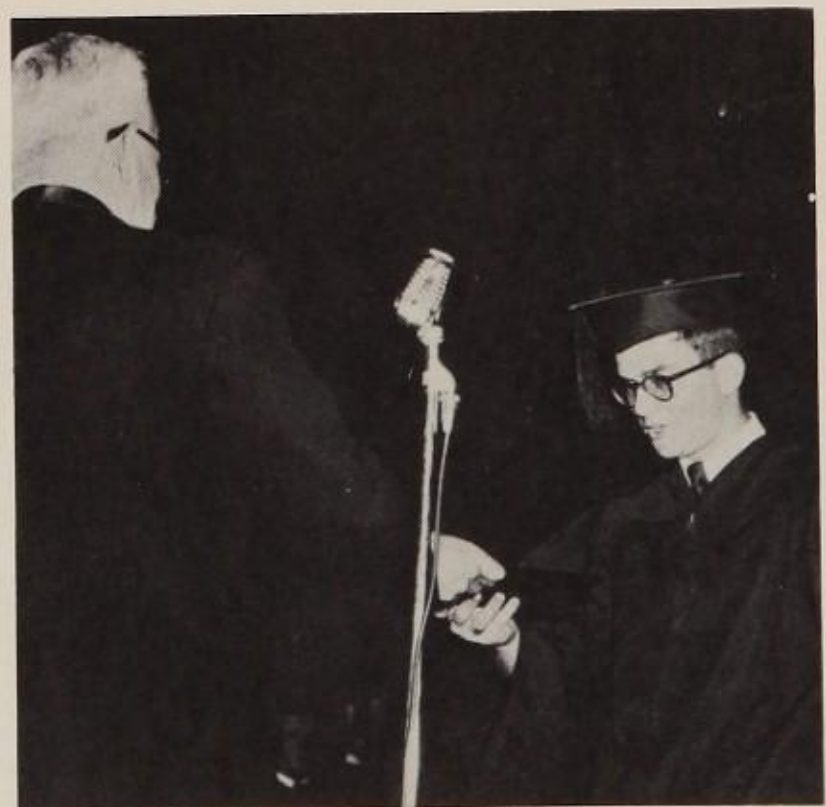

Rich And Full, Led According To This Pattern For Life.

J. Pierce gives the valedictory address during graduation exercises.

Holding their long awaited diplomas, B. Hale, A. Goggin, C. Goodhue, and D. Greenwood applaud a classmate.

Class president G. Klems receives his diploma from headmaster E. Lord officially ending his high school career.

The Alumni Day Parade is one of the biggest events in the school year. Here, the Class of 1929 rides in a float symbolizing the original Stevens building.

The Class of 1939 depicts the first Thanksgiving of the Pilgrims in America.

Carrying out the historical theme of the Alumni Day Parade, the Class of 1944 recalls the raising of the American flag on Iwo Jima.

One hundred years of education was celebrated this year by the New Hampshire State Teachers' Association. The Claremont Teachers' Council entered an attractive and symbolic float.

THE RED AND BLACK TYPISTS: Essential to a good yearbook is the excellent work of the typing staff: M. LaFontaine, E. Simoneau, B. Burke, B. Wakeman, C. Dole, J. Fenoff, J. Williams, J. Bennett.

THE BUSINESS STAFF OF THE RED AND BLACK: Their chore is to raise the nearly two thousand dollars needed to finance the Stevens yearbook. Standing: J. McLaughlin, T. DeVoyd, B. Kehoe, R. Silva, J. Tucker, R. Beland, R. Townsend, M. Currier, M. Chrostowski, L. Currier, D. Ekberg. SEATED: K. Wilson, M. Thompson, J. Nahil, M. Jacobson, A. Belden, J. Lambert, R. Denault.

THE RED AND BLACK ART STAFF: The planning of the book, its sequence and attractiveness is the responsibility of this group: B. Tucker, A. Dionne, P. Gauthier, R. Story, L. Fletcher, J. Brock, S. Sirois, C. Jarvis, B. Ainsworth.

THE SUBSCRIPTION STAFF OF THE RED AND BLACK: This staff is in charge of selling copies of the yearbook to the members of the student body: J. Jones, G. Richmond, S. Mack, D. Napsey, C. Vadney, B. Simpson, and V. Moreau.

THE SPONSORS OF "THE RED AND BLACK"

The Staff of "The Red and Black" wishes to extend its sincere thanks to the merchants of Claremont and the friends of Stevens High School who, through their generosity, have made possible the 1955 issue of our yearbook. We wish especially to acknowledge the fine cooperation of Jack Titchen and call attention to his outstanding photographs used as the end leaves in our yearbook.

A black and white photograph of a landscape. In the foreground, there are dark, silhouetted branches of trees or shrubs on the left side. The middle ground shows a vast, open field with patches of low-lying vegetation and some small structures or trees scattered across it. In the background, there are rolling hills or mountains under a sky with some clouds. The overall tone is contemplative and serene.

The Eternal Pattern:

I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes Unto The Hills
